

History of Western Woodlot

Originally established in 1989 as Kane Industrial Sales, Western Woodlot was one of the first companies to import portable sawmilling technology to Canada, bringing the thin-kerf sawmilling industry to the forefront of lumber production. Demand for blades and sharpening services increased exponentially over the following years, and it quickly became apparent that this was the wave of the future for sawmilling. In partnership with Dinasaw, Western Woodlot became the major Dino bandsaw sharpener dealer for North America, importing and distributing the Dino product line to various locations across the continent. In the early 90's increased demand for saw blades saw Western Woodlot become a dealer for MK Morse band saw blades, and at the same time continued to import blade stock directly from other dealers and manufacture custom blades for specialty clients. 1997 saw the development of Western Woodlot's very own industry-g geared sawmill, aptly named the Kodiak, which it created in partnership with TriPower of Salmon Arm, B.C., Canada.

Western Woodlot remains one of the major thin-kerf sawblade suppliers for Canada – as a distributor of both Lennox and Woodmizer bandsaw blades and blade stock, we offer one of the largest selections for sawyers to choose from, no matter the application. We understand that each species presents certain characteristics when it comes to milling - and that blade selection is paramount to ensure precision cutting – and the experienced staff at Western Woodlot can help guide you to the best choice, no matter how difficult the job. In addition, Western Woodlot guarantees all workmanship from our weld center, as well as prompt speedy delivery and great customer service to get you milling!

Our reputation speaks for itself – over 21 years of experience with blade technology, sharpening equipment and milling development gives us the knowledge to assist our customers with any technical assistance or advice you may require.
